```
Client                          Server
                                <Wait for TCP connection to port 110>
<Open TCP connection>
                                ← +OK POP3 server ready
                                  1896.697170952@rub.de
APOP mrose
c4c9334bac560ecc979e58001b3e22fb →
                                ← +OK schwenk's maildrop has 2 messages
                                  (320 octets)
STAT                            →
                                ← +OK 2 320
LIST                            →
                                ← +OK 2 messages (320 octets)
                                ← 1 120
                                ← 2 200
                                ← .
RETR 1                          →
                                ← +OK 120 octets
                                ← <POP3 server sends e-mail 1>
                                ← .
DELE 1                          →
                                ← +OK message 1 deleted
RETR 2                          →
                                ← +OK 200 octets
                                ← < POP3 server sends e-mail 2>
                                ← .
DELE 2                          →
                                ← +OK message 2 deleted
QUIT                            →
                                ← +OK rub POP3 server signing off
                                  (maildrop empty)
<Close TCP connection>
                                <Wait for next connection>
```